fit specific cases, and he likewise ex-plained that American firms dealing with blacklisted firms would be affected on this account. Informally the State De-partment expressed gratication to the Ambasador for these assurances, but it is pointed out that the President's note ignores all that Sir Cecil promised and proceeds to generalize on threatened menaces to American trade resulting from the "wide scope" of the blacklist

Text of the Note.

The text of the note follows: "The announcement that his Britannic Majesty's Government has placed the names of certain persons, firms and corporations in the United States upon a proscriptive 'blacklist,' and has forbid-den all financial or commercial dealings between them and citizens of Great Britain, has been received with the most painful surprise by the people and Gov-ernment of the United States, and seems ernment of the United States, and seems to the Government of the United States, to the Government of the United States one of the delegates, while Spain, to the Government of the United States to embody a policy of arbitrary interference with neutral trade against which it is its duty to protest in the most decided terms.

extraordinary. British steamship com-panies will not accept cargoes from the proscribed firms or persons or transport their goods to any port, and steamship lines under neutral ownership understand that if they accept freight from them they are likely to be denied coal at Britports and excluded from other priviand may themselves be put upon the Neutral bankers refuse loans to those on the list and neutral mer-chants decline to contract for their goods,

"It appears that British that British officials regard the prohibitions of the blacklist as applicable to domestic commercial trans-actions in foreign countries as well as in Great Britain and her dependencies, for Americans doing business in foreign countries have been put on notice that their dealings with blacklisted firms are to be regarded as subject to veto by the British Government. By the same princi-ple Americans in the United States might be made subject to similar punitive acif they were found dealing with any their own countrymen whose names had thus been listed.

The harsh and even disastrous effects of this policy upon the trade of the United States and upon the neutral rights upon which it will not fail to insist are obvious. Upon the list of those proscribed and in effect shut out from the general commerce of the world may be found American concerns which are engaged in large commercial operations as importers of foreign products and materials and as distributers of American products and manufactures to foreign products and manufactures to foreign countries, and which constitute impor-tant channels through which American tant channels through which American trade reaches the outside world. Their foreign affiliations may have been fostered for many years, and when once broken cannot easily or promptly be restablished. Other concerns may be put upon the list at any time and without notice.

The language of the country is a penny a look.

"It is understood that additions to the proscription may be made 'whenever or account of enemy nationality or enemy nationality or enemy nationality or enemy persons or bodies of persons it appears to his Majesty expedient to do so.' The possibilities of undeserved injury to American citizens from such measures, arbitrarily taken, and of serious and incalculable interrupof American trade are without

The Government of the United States begs to remind the Government of his Britannic Majesty that citizens of the United States are entirely within their rights in attempting to trade with the people or the Governments of any of the nations now at war, subject only to well defined international practices and understandings, which the Govern-ment of the United States deems the Govof Great Britain to have too lightly and too frequently disregarded.

From the American viewpoint the feature of the note is its peppery language extolling the sanctity of American rights in a manner sufficient to satisfy the President's political supporters who have been persistenly urging him to "twist the begitimate consequences of unneutral acts should suffer the appropriate penalties which international law and the usage of nations have sanctioned; but his Britannic Majesty's Government cannot expect the follow-print and the Semenoff Gallery of Pain mission to employ counsel.
